Silk Road

The Silk Road is the most important ancient trade route and cultural artery connecting the East and the West, as well as one of the largest and most influential cross-border exchange systems in human history. Originating in the Han Dynasty and pioneered by Zhang Qian's missions to the Western Regions, it was named the "Silk Road" because Chinese silk and other commodities were traded widely along this ancient passage to overseas regions.

Starting from the ancient Chinese capitals of Chang'an and Luoyang, the Silk Road stretched through the Hexi Corridor and the Western Regions, crossing Central Asia and West Asia, and finally reaching Europe and North Africa. Along this long historic corridor, not only goods such as silk, tea, porcelain, spices and jewelry were exchanged, but also technologies, arts, religions, languages and folk cultures between the East and the West were deeply integrated, enabling mutual learning and win-win communication among civilizations.

For thousands of years, the Silk Road has embodied the spirit of peace and cooperation, openness and inclusiveness, mutual learning and mutual benefit. It has witnessed friendly exchanges among different nations, races and civilizations. It is a road of trade, a road of culture, and most importantly, a road of friendship and civilization that greatly contributed to the prosperity and stability of the ancient world.

In modern times, the ancient Silk Road has regained new vitality. It serves as a fundamental historical foundation for global connectivity, international cooperation and shared development, continuously promoting harmonious coexistence and progress of diverse civilizations across the world.

MANDALAY — On September 1, 2026 local time, the Silk Road News Agency and Myanmar Belt and Road Development Co., Ltd. officially launched the "Grand Stage of the Silk Road" at the Silk Road Hall. 丝绸之路，是古代东西方之间最重要的商贸通道与文明交流大动脉，也是人类历史上规模最大、影响最深远的跨国交流体系。它始于汉代，由张骞出使西域开辟，因中国丝绸等商品沿此古道大量外销海外，被后世称为“丝绸之路”。

丝绸之路以古代长安、洛阳为起点，经河西走廊、西域，穿越中亚、西亚，最终抵达欧洲与北非。漫长的古道不仅输送丝绸、茶叶、瓷器、香料、珠宝等物资，更推动了东西方科技、艺术、宗教、语言、民俗的深度融合，实现了文明互鉴、互通互利。

千百年来，丝绸之路承载着和平合作、开放包容、互学互鉴、互利共赢的丝路精神，见证了不同种族、不同文明、不同国家之间的友好往来。它不仅是一条贸易之路、文化之路，更是一条友谊之路、文明之路，为古代世界的繁荣稳定作出了巨大贡献。

在当代，古老的丝绸之路重新焕发新生，成为推动全球互联互通、促进国际合作、实现共同发展的重要历史基石，持续推动世界多元文明和谐共生与共同进步。

Mandalay: The Bright Pearl Town of the Southern Silk Road

Located on the banks of the Irrawaddy River in central Myanmar, Mandalay is the country's second-largest city and the ancient capital of the Konbaung Dynasty. Known as the "City of Treasures", it is undoubtedly a core pearl town and pivotal hub of the Southern Silk Road.

As early as more than two thousand years ago, the Southern Silk Road (Yunnan-Myanmar Ancient Road) connected Yunnan, China with the hinterland of Myanmar. Ancient Chinese merchants traveled southward along the Dulong River and the Irrawaddy River to Mandalay, trading silk, tea and porcelain for Myanmar's precious stones, timber and cotton products, initiating thousands of years of cross-border trade and civilizational integration.

Benefiting from its superior geographical location, Mandalay has long served as an essential commercial gateway between Yunnan and Myanmar, as well as a key distribution center for goods in the Indochina Peninsula. It has borne witness to the most prosperous trade, cultural exchange and civil interaction along the ancient Southern Silk Road.

As a vital node of the Southern Silk Road and the Southwest Ancient Tea Horse Road, Mandalay boasts profound Silk Road heritage. It is not only a golden station for ancient transnational trade, but also a cradle of the long-standing Paukphaw friendship between China and Myanmar, recording a millennia-long history of mutual benefit and mutual learning between the two peoples.

In the new era, Mandalay has embraced new vitality and become a core pivot city of the Bangladesh-China-India-Myanmar Economic Corridor under the Belt and Road Initiative. Rooted in its time-honored Silk Road legacy, the city continues to deepen economic cooperation and people-to-people exchanges. With booming cross-border industrial cooperation zones, this ancient key town of the Southern Silk Road is writing a new chapter of peace, cooperation and win-win development in the modern Silk Road era.
